Dangerous Driving

ONE of the most dangerous types of motorists on the highways today, in the opinion of Mrs. D. V. Gallagher, secretary of the Marion Auto club, is that which has come to be known as the "snake driver," who crawls in and out of traffic in such a way as to endanger all others who happen to be within close range of his maneuvers.

This character of driving on the part of many motorists, Mrs. Gallagher says, has become a definite menace to the lives of others traveling the highways, and is something against which the careful driver and one who is content to remain in the line of traffic has just cause for complaint.

"There are times when moving out of line is justifiable, particularly if traffic is being held up by some old wreck of a car moving at a slow rate of speed, but under ordinary circumstances if traffic is moving at a reasonable rate the driver who insists on cutting out of line into the left-hand lane, speeding ahead for a short distance and then edging his way back, is the driver deserving criticism," the Marion Auto club secretary declares.

Many fatal accidents are traceable to "snake driving" and not infrequently cars are piled up as a result of this type of reckless operation of motor vehicles, she says.

The Ohio State Automobile association may, according to Mrs. Gallagher, seek legislation at the next session of the legislature aimed at eliminating this menace.

His men, after finishing their week of work Saturday at noon, drove out to Lamb's farm, found some more cutters and went at it.

By nightfall the job was done. Men who did the work were Harry Delander, Ellis Hogart, Earl Weston, Stanley Morrison, J. R. Mullins, E. F. Parish, John Martin, W. L. Ruggles, Fred Coffee, C. W. Coffee, Joe Hawthorne, F. H. Rogers, Earnest Swisher, Forest

Rush, Robert Rush and C. W. Ward.

Good Reason

A RECENT naturalization hearing common pleas court at which six persons were admitted to citizenship, furnished numerous chuckles for people in the court room.

One man, for instance, was asked by Paul Werner, of Cleveland, naturalization official, why he wished to become a citizen.

The man replied that he wanted to be like others and have the same rights as others.

"Could you hold office if you become a citizen?" Werner asked.

"Could you be, for example, clerk of courts?"

"No," the applicant replied.

Werner asked the man the reason why he couldn't hold such an office, where upon the applicant came back with a startling answer.

"I couldn't hold the office because I don't have enough education," he declared.

Tight Place JUMPING from the frying pan into the fire was the recent fate of a prisoner against whom a burglary indictment had been returned by a Marion county grand jury.

Quizzed in connection with the murder last July of Raymond Steele, North Main street filling station operator, the prisoner was forced to confess a grocery store burglary in Cleveland in order to offer an alibi to police that he was not in Marion at the time of the murder.

Prosecuting Attorney Alfred Donihue investigated the alibi and found the prisoner's story to be true, but the confession practically convicted the man on the burglary charge, it was pointed out.

U. S. BUYING TREND HIGHER IN AUGUST

Secretary Lamont Claims Business Depression Past Low Point.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Secretary Lamont said Monday there was an important trend now noticeable in American business by which leaders of industry are buying raw materials far ahead of current consumption rates.

The commerce department head commented the movement was a national reaction to the present low level of commodity prices.

"It is perfectly clear," he added, "that business on the whole has ceased a marked decline which was characteristic of a number of earlier months and there are some distinctly encouraging features.

The most encouraging aspects are the growth of export trade as revealed by the August statistics and the distinct picking up in retail trade is more than usually occurs at this season. Moreover the stocks of retail stores are exceptionally low and there is good reason to believe that their purchases from manufacturers and wholesalers will increase materially."

As to the purchase of raw materials by industry, Secretary Lamont said the extra buying was being done entirely without organization and not because of any government pressure or solicitation.

Flashes of Life

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Jim Reed, back from abroad, has no idea as to what is the matter with Europe if anything. "I can't see," he explained, "that a man traveling across a country can form any intelligent opinion of that country's condition, economic or political."

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—Ty Cobb, Jr., is out for the Yale freshman football team. In filling out a card he listed football, tennis, hockey, swimming and squash raquets as sports in which he is interested. Baseball is not among them.

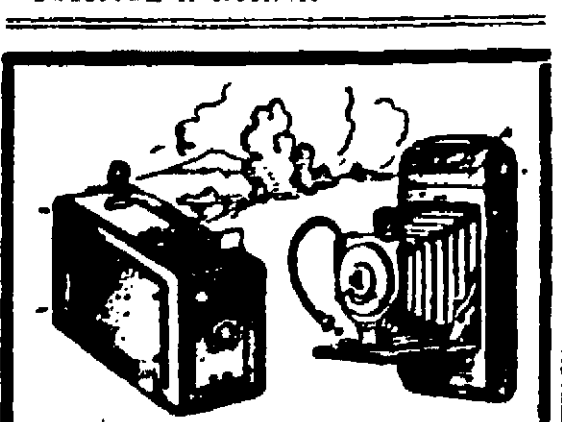

NEW YORK—Buster Keaton, baseball nut, home from Europe, intends to commute between Philadelphia and St. Louis shortly. He is rooting for the Cards especially because he made a discovery on the sandlot near moviedome. An errand boy was so good that Buster got him a job with the Vernon team. Now the fellow is in the St. Louis outfield. The name is Orsett.

NEW YORK—Bud Stillman's bride, the former Lena Wilson of the Quebec wilds, is to attend classes at the Harvard Medical school with him. He intends to be a specialist on child diseases and she will go to some non-technical lectures because she is interested in the subject that interest him.

WASHINGTON—Thanks to some Tennessee mountaineers the White House table will not lack for goodies. A basket of preserves made by women pupils of the moonlight schools of Hamilton county has been presented along with a peck of sweet potatoes raised by 4-H clubs, and a possum is coming shortly after the frost arrives.

NEW YORK—Harry Manning, chief officer of the liner America and hero of a sea rescue, is entitled to go up to the sky as well as down to the sea in ships. He has tickets as master mariner and flier. With no idea of giving up the sea he has learned to be an aviator for pleasure only and received a license.

In sick stomachs—instan

Sick stomachs, sour stomachs and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines pain.

Alkali kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless does neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Fire Prevention Week—Oct. 5-11

Insurance indemnifies by furnishing money for rebuilding burned buildings and replacing destroyed property, but the greater gain to any individual or community is in the prevention of those losses—in possessions, in time, in years of effort—which insurance cannot possibly replace.

Be one of the Minute Men of 1930 and join in this ever-spreading movement to curb and control fire and thus decrease the frightful sacrifice of life and wealth, involving the loss of about 12,000 lives annually, a direct property loss of 500 million dollars a year and an indirect loss of probably that much more.

STATE AWARDS BUILDING JOB

Cincinnati, Louisville Company Gets Office Structure Contract.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23—Construction of Ohio's new state office building in the Scioto river front here will get under way soon as equipment and laborers can be assembled.

Plans for actual work leading to erection of the building were announced after the state building commission awarded contracts for the project yesterday. The structure will be of Georgia marble and will be built by the Struck Construction company of Cincinnati and Louisville, Ky.

Georgia marble was chosen as the material by a unanimous vote of the commission. The Struck company's bid on this project was $2,622,000 which was $25,000 less than the next lowest bidder—the Georgia A. Fuller company of Washington, D. C., and the F. R. Patterson Construction company of Detroit.

In awarding the contract, Col. Carl A. Thompson, chairman of the commission, said it had been hoped that an Ohio contractor would enter the lowest bid. Two Cleveland firms offered low bids on both construction and equipment, but it was found the latter work could be done more cheaply by separate contractors.

Consequently, the other jobs were awarded as follows: heating, P. H. Meyer Company, of Louisville, $90,250; ventilating, R. P. Leiby of Columbus, $44,500; plumbing and fire protection, Samuel A. Esswein Company of Columbus, $95,130; drinking water cooling system, C. P. Wood company of Cincinnati, $4,500; electrical equipment, the Paul L. Gilmore company of Columbus, $179,000.

Approximately 300 men will be employed during the progress of the work, which under present plans, is to be completed by Dec. 31, 1931. The plans provide a penalty of $250 a day against the contractor, if the work is not completed by the specified date.

Buildings already acquired will be torn down within a few days, the commission said, and excavations will start as soon as workmen and equipment are obtained.

BLAKE PALLBEARERS NAMED FROM LODGE

Knights Templar Escort To Accompany Body of Florist to Grave.

Pallbearers for Ben F. Blake, Marion's oldest florist in point of years in business, will be men from Marion Lodge No. 70, Free and Accepted Masons. Mr. Blake dropped dead Sunday night at his home at 266 South Vine street. He was a member of the Blue Lodge, chapter, council and commandery of Masonry, was a member of Marion Lodge No. 32, B. P. O. Elks for more than 20 years, Knights of Pythias, the state florists association in which he was a member of the board of directors, and the Isaac Walton league.

In addition to his lodge and business affiliations, Mr. Blake was first vice president of the Marion Auto club and one of the trustees of that organization.

Frank Gegenheimer, Walter Shealy, Dr. C. J. Altmaier, Dr. D. W. Brickley, Dr. H. K. Mouser and A. E. Mautz will serve as pallbearers. Mr. Blake will be accorded a Knights Templar escort.

Funeral services will be Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. at Epworth M. E. church, with John W. 70 in charge of the Masonic burial service.

Friends may view the body at the home until Wednesday noon when it will be moved to the church to be viewed there until funeral time. Interment will be in Marion cemetery.

Members of the Bridge club were entertained at their last meeting for the season by Miss Mary Horner, man of Marion at Ringers Inn, Friday evening. Mrs. M. V. Walt was awarded first prize and Mrs. T. Clark was consoler.

Advocates Sale of Ad Space on Postage Stamps

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—Predicting that congress would refuse to increase first class mail rates, Representative Collier, Democrat, of New York, suggested in a letter to Postmaster General Brown that advertising space be sold to private enterprises to make up the postal deficit.

Brown recently proposed a half cent an ounce increase on first-class mail as a means of making up the deficit. Collier pointed out that France, Germany, New Zealand, Italy and Bavaria sold advertising space on stamps.

HOOVER'S SON AIDED BY INHERITED VIGOR

Family Background Expected To Be Vital Factor in Fight for Health.

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Sept. 23—An inheritance of the vigor that has served his father well throughout a strenuous life is expected to aid Herbert Hoover, Jr., in his fight against tuberculosis.

This is the opinion of Dr. Joel T. Boone, White House physician, who yesterday announced the result of his diagnosis of the 27-year-old radio engineer. Young Hoover's both sides of the family, have been people of vigor, free from tubercular infection, he pointed out.

Since Boone's diagnosis has demonstrated clearly that the President's son has a small tubercular lesion, a careful program of recovery has been worked out for him. He is enjoying the restful quiet of his father's Hapland camp and will remain there in a well-ventilated hut until cool weather comes.

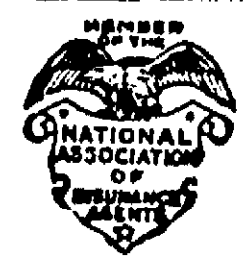

Dr. Boone's prescribed diet is not limited to the traditional raw eggs and milk. Boone is of the opinion such a diet often provokes indigestion. The young man's meals will be well-balanced to include a wide variety of food values, though cod liver oil will be an important part of his diet.

Boone is particularly gratified that the infection was discovered in an early stage while the affected area was small. He feels the prospects of a speedy cure are very bright.

The President's son has obtained an indefinite leave of absence from his employment, the Western Air express, and will continue to rest until he is out of danger.

Young Hoover's physical examination showed his weight had dropped to 135 pounds, although he is six feet tall. When he first came here from California 10 days ago, he complained of a digestive disturbance, but this is believed now to have been secondary and caused by the tubercular infection.

COD LIVER OIL IN TABLET FORM BOON TO MOTHERS

Children who Take McCoy's Tablets — Quickly Gain in Weight and Vigor

New York, N. Y.—Child health authorities here are enthusiastic over a recent discovery that makes the health-building properties of cod liver oil available in a new and palatable form.

The McCoy Laboratories have succeeded in concentrating the cod liver oil vitamins A and D in small, tasteless tablets. Children who never before could stand the nasty, fishy taste of cod liver oil now take these little health tablets without fuss or bother. Mothers get them at any drug store, just by asking for a box of McCoy's.

To see for yourself that these easy, pleasant tablets actually contain the magic health properties of cod liver oil, buy a box and bite the first tablet. Your own taste tells you that in these amazing little tablets are all the concentrated health values of cod liver oil.

Give McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Extract Tablets to your children freely. Be faithful and regular. To get the benefits you must keep it up, because cod liver oil is a food, not a drug, and the real health that comes from food comes gradually.

MAN UNDER CLOSE GUARD AS KIDNAPER

Ex-Convict Confesses to Slaying 8-Year-Old Child at South Bend.

"George" until Myers arrested last Saturday. He confessed to the slaying of the child in a confession made today, he said.

Myers frequently met the child in the street and that was the result of the kidnapping, he said. He left the body in a barrel, he said, for two days. He removed it, placed it where it would be discovered by motorists. Myers expressed willingness to plead guilty. Conviction carries the death penalty.

Extra guards were placed about the county jail until early today when, to avoid the danger of mob violence, he was removed to jail at Michigan City.

Arthur Brisbane's Today

years old, there is a moral for millions of young men. A great moral will not be interested in the moral, but here it is:

More than 70 years ago Henry Phipps, young clerk in a hardware store in Ohio, sold powder to coal miners, other things to other people.

And when his work was done he walked eight miles there and eight miles back to keep books for a blacksmith and ironworker unable to keep accounts.

That blacksmith, with Carnegie and Phipps, went into the steel business. They prospered.

Phipps undoubtedly had business genius, as had Carnegie. But if Phipps had not been willing to walk eight miles there and back to earn a few extra dollars a month, and get ahead in the world, he wouldn't have gone into business with Carnegie, and he would not now be leaving many millions to his children.

MR. HYDE, secretary of agriculture, says Russians do not tell the truth about their short wheat selling, that they sold twice as much as they admit selling.

Instead of selling 5,000,000 bushels, according to the secretary, they have sold 10,000,000 bushels.

It is wrong for Russian Communists to come to our great country and do what American citizens do every day, selling short or speculating for a rise in life's necessities.

But even if Russia has sold 10,000,000 bushels of wheat in eight or nine months, that would not make much difference, considering that the Chicago board of trade alone sells and buys 50,000,000 to 60,000,000 bushels daily.

More important than Russia's wickedness is the fact of speculating in life's necessities.

If you speculate to increase the cost of bread in France they put you in jail at hard labor. And they really PUT YOU IN JAIL. They do not merely talk about it.

GASOLINE PRICES are cut in Britain and Holland. Prices that automobile owners pay in Europe add one to your million reasons for being glad you live in America. In Holland, as in France, they

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR IN CONVENTION OPENING

10,000 Delegates Start Rush on Cleveland for Colorful Affair.

By United Press
CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 23.—Bearing colorful uniforms, jewelry, plumes and swords, 10,000 Knights Templar and nearly as many women began pouring into Cleveland today to attend the 85th annual convocation.

Grand Commander Harrison R. Schneider and Generalissimo Frederick N. Price of Findlay arrived this morning at the head of the Findlay delegation and were met by an escort committee of 50.

The main program will be started tonight when a dinner is to be held at Masonic temple. This will be attended by commanders, generalissimos, captains general and post commanders of all commanderies of Ohio. No ladies will be present.

A reception at Hotel Statler at 8:30 p. m. will be in the form of a reception by the seven commanderies of greater Cleveland for grand commandery officers and all sir knights and ladies attending the convocation. It will be held in the ballroom and will be a colorful affair.

DEFENDANT, JURORS AT SCENE OF CRIME

Attorneys Make Opening Statements as Court Opens at Bucyrus Today.

Called in the three trials. Sentence will not be passed on him until the close of the trial, probably Thursday, it was indicated today.

While Massa is in death row at Ohio penitentiary awaiting electrocution Jan. 2, his counsel, Attorney E. J. Myers, announced today that the case will be carried to the court of appeals.

Myers announced, after conferring with the parents of the condemned man, that the appeal would be made merely "to test the legal steps of the proceedings of the trial court here." He claimed that no efforts would be made to gain Massa's freedom.

Sites' trial is expected to follow much the same angle as taken during the other hearings. Nearly all the witnesses who testified for the state against Massa and McCartney have been subpoenaed by the prosecution.

Sites was granted permission to view the scene of the shooting by Judge J. Walter Wright. He is the first of the three defendants in the murder case to see the killing station after being returned here from the Ohio penitentiary where they had been sentenced by a Mansfield court for assault.

Members of the jury which will hear testimony in the case are: Mrs. Carrie Zinke, Herman Long, Samuel E. Auck, Clarence W. Bond and Mrs. Elizabeth O'Daffer of Bucyrus, Clyde Shilling of New Washington, D. Dimon of Gallon, L. P. Battifield of Bucyrus, Harlan Jones of Gallon, J. L. Deliber and F. E. Kepler, both of Whetstone township and Charles W. Kern of Bucyrus. Fred Sponseller of New Washington was named the thirteenth juror.

New York Republicans To Run on Wet Plank

By International News Service
ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Charles H. Tuttle of New York will be nominated for governor on a platform containing a plank calling for repeal of the eighteenth amendment at the Republican state convention which meets here Thursday unless there is a last minute change of heart on the part of G. O. P. leaders.

Grand Jury Probes Failure of Two Banks

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, C. H., O., Sept. 23.—Grand jury investigation into the failure of two banks here, instituted after involuntary bankruptcy proceedings had been entered against Hal S. Daugherty, former president of one of the institutions, was continued today on the most important witness of the day, James McGhee, former attorney general of Ohio, who is now employed by the depositor's committee of the closed bank.

Primary Tangle Title Nearer Solution Today

By United Press
LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 23.—The primary election tangle surrounding the name "George W. Norris" appeared little nearer solution today as the two holders of the name—the senator and the grocer—were called before the senate investigating committee for the second time.

B. F. Blake's Death Loss to City Firemen

IN the passing of Ben F. Blake, veteran Marion florist, last Sunday night, city firemen feel they have lost a real friend.

Few persons not connected with the department have taken the active interest in his welfare as did Mr. Blake, according to Fire Chief T. J. McFarland.

Since he laid out a landscaping plan for the "back yard" of the central fire station 17 years ago and furnished the necessary hedge, vines and flowers to make this a beautiful spot in summer months, Mr. Blake has supplied the department with flowers annually and has kept an interested eye on the condition of the lawn, hedge and flowers.

ing, that one is almost able to forget that awful, long-extended drought.

that she speaks with the voice of experience.

The Italian government is planning the enactment of a new code to protect the morals of the people of Italy. Legislation to preserve morals may work all right over in Italy, but certain legislation to that end has made an awful mess of things over here.

There's no discounting the fact that the Kansas farmer, who looked half a mile right into markable experience or a wonderfully vivid imagination.

"Bishop Cannon To Face Second Church Inquiry," reads a headline over a Richmond, Virginia, story. Without any particular liking for the bishop, one who reads may see the possibility that his fellow-churchmen may make a nasty out of him.

Secretary of State Stimson has been asked to lift the story that a native-born American of Italian blood was beaten up on the last westward trip of the Roma because he wouldn't cheer Mussolini, the counter-charge of the ship's officers being that the passenger in question insisted that Mussolini be consigned to a destination in which even an asbestos suit would prove unavailing as a protection against the heat. Both stories are possible, but the latter is far more probable.

Bishop William A. Leonard.

The death of the Right Reverend William A.
Leonard, bishop of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Ohio, is mourned alike in religious circles and in the world outside the church.
It was known that he could not much longer bear the weight of his eighty-two years, but yet the announcement of his death at his summer home at Gambier brought to all who knew him that feeling of loss, which, despite the advance knowledge that the end was near, ever attends the passing of one who has achieved greatly and yet been great in the humility with which he measured his accomplishments.

It was typical of Bishop Leonard that he should sum up a brief address, in response to a number of tributes to his work delivered at a banquet given in his honor in Cleveland on the occasion of the celebration of the fortieth anniversary of his consecration as bishop, by saying:

"It's God Who has done all this. I've simply been an instrument. I am full of gratitude.
My heart overflows with joy. Surely goodness and mercy have followed me and I have dwelt in the Lord's house."

Forty-two years the head of the Ohio diocese
after having twice refused a bishopric, the oldest active bishop in the Episcopal church
both in years and service, twice the ranking member of the episcopate, the author of a number of valued works on religious subjects and a highly-esteemed essayist and magazine writer, Bishop Leonard's entire life in the church and among his fellow-men was marked by that simplicity of bearing and manner most often manifested in the lives of those whose great aim in life is to do good to and for humanity.

It is said that the trained reader of men can usually determine the character of a man by his features, but the untrained could tell by the features of Bishop Leonard of the goodness of the man within. It was a Marion woman, one not a member of his denomination, who, seeking to identify him to a gathering referred to him as "that bishop with the face of a saint," and seemingly those present needed no other description to identify Bishop Leonard as the one she had in mind. His very face proclaimed the greatness and the goodness of his soul to all.

In the Hearts of the People.

Comment on the fact that the splendid memorial erected to the memory of the late President Harding through the voluntary contributions of the American people has never been officially dedicated, manifestly is growing in volume. In small part, it is the comment of writers, who have utilized the situation as a basis for magazine articles of which they have disposed to their own pecuniary advantage. In part, unquestionably, it is that of some who are seeking to cause embarrassment to those they charge with being responsible for the failure of dedication. There is,
as well, the comment of those who hold that,
no matter what the reason or reasons therefor, the long delay in dedicating the memorial is an injustice to the memory of a dead president.

Granted that an official dedication would be seemly, this writer can not help but feel that no utterance by one in official life, no matter how high his station, could add materially to the appeal of the Harding memorial as a national shrine.

It is to be questioned if any president in the history of the nation—from the first to the present incumbent in the presidency—ever so enshrined himself in the affections of the American people as a whole as Warren G.
Harding. Over 2,000,000 of his fellow-countrymen have already visited his tomb, and still they come daily the year around—in heat and cold, in sunshine and in rain.

If the dead are conscious of the affairs of this earthly life from which they have been taken, any one having truly known Warren G.
Harding and his great love for his fellow-men must believe that this unceasing pilgrimage speaks with far more force to him than could any official utterance over his grave. Such would be a passing incident. The dedication of his tomb in the hearts of the people endures.

The headlines featured the fact that nine lives were lost in France in the 100-mile-an-hour storm which swept the English channel, Sunday. And the same day fourteen people were killed in traffic accidents here in Ohio.
But then, of course, storm deaths are not of daily occurrence!

It has developed that a number of men on the payroll of New York City as street sweepers haven't touched a broom in the last twelve years. Still, "the boys" must have some support if they are to be kept "regular."

Americans Reported Held in Russia.

The fourteen German workers who succeeded in escaping from soviet Russia and are back in Berlin, warning all German workers to stay out of Russia, are more fortunate than the 450 Americans, including eighty women and children, reported in Riga as being held prisoners by the Stalin government in the Stalingrad tractor plant.

The fourteen Germans, members of a group of workers who went to Russia under what appeared to be an alluring contract, were forced to undergo all kinds of hardships, endure filth of almost every description, eat sickening stuff not before them as food, go bootless and work two hours daily over the six hours they had contracted to work, finally were able to get the wherewithal to return home by selling their clothes and any other things of value they took with them to Russia.
The men of the American party are reported to be highly-skilled mechanics and engineers
from Detroit.

Laid off owing to the curtailment of automobile production, they were offered jobs by an employment agency, which they declined as they were anxious to leave Russia before winter sets in, as their lives are threatened by typhus, typhoid, dysentery, scurvy, malaria, pneumonia and a number of unknown Asiatic fevers. Visions to leave the country have been refused them and communication with the outside world is either denied them or so censored that they can not tell the full horror of their plight. Two members of the colony have died, many are seriously ill in the hospital and sixty per cent. are suffering from dysentery, believed to be the result of drinking the unpurified water of the Volga, and the only medicine provided by the Russian government is castor oil.

One is bound to pity these unfortunate;
bound to pity all of such stupidity as to seek employment of any kind in the land under bolshhevik misrule. But their said plight is of their own making. The workmen of America should know that one, other than a communist, who goes to Russia to engage in industry risks his liberty and possibly his life.
And the capitalist who invests his money there,
or the industrialist who sells his product to Russia, save for cash in advance, risks its confiscation.

There is ever menace in any land which has departed from the observance of ordinary business and governmental honor and decency.

Paris claims that there can be no Franco-Italian accord in naval limitation until it is known how far the United States will go in building up to the limits of the London agreement. The Americans who used to remain awake at night for fear this country would be isolated because of its refusal to enter the League of Nations possibly realize by this time that they have another guess coming.

According to a news story, the forty-eight ponies brought over by the British polo team brought $153,400 at auction. If polo mounts cost as herein indicated, the most of us will remain content with peewee golf.

A small painting purchased at an auction in New York City six months ago for $50 turns out to be a Rubens valued at $25,000, which reminds us that the utmost care should be exercised by all of us in discarding our less-esteemed works of art.

New York City is taking steps to license the miniature golf courses and regulate the hours they may be operated, complaints having been made to the city authorities from all sections of the metropolis that the noise and the bright lights occasioned by the courses which are run until the early morning hours make sleeping in adjoining apartments and homes impossible. "Twas ever thus! There never was a great forward stride in the history of civilization which did not meet with opposition!

THE CRYSTAL GAZERS.

WHO'S BROKE?

New York statisticians figure that at the worst stage of the business depression from which the country is now emerging, consumption of commodities averaged only ten per cent. under the peak of the preceding boom.

Eastern business men commonly look upon the western farmer as a pessimist. Yet a western farmer can take a ten per cent. crop loss right on the chin, without even blinking, whereas numerous eastern business men this year have been wringing their hands over a business recession that is fairly comparable to the farmer's ten per cent. crop loss. And it is their pessimism that has retarded complete recovery.

"Hard times?" This generation knows nothing about hard times. Recent estimates place
the year's investment in miniature golf courses at considerably more than $200,000,000 or more than the whole American iron and steel industry was worth only a few decades ago.

Most of these golf courses paid for themselves in the first few weeks of operation, which plainly means that the public has spent a great deal more than $200,000,000 in 1930 for the privilege of indulging in a wholesome pastime. And the folk who have paid out this huge sum are not the idle rich. They are, for the most part, working people.

Forty years ago, the game of tiddy-winks,
played at a table indoors, had as many devotedes, proportionately, as miniature golf has today. A set of tiddy-winks could be bought for as little as a dime. A fine set could be had for a quarter. Yet many a family that wanted to play tiddy-winks did not do so, for the reason that it could not spare the dime or the quarter, the latter coin representing about a fourth of a day's wages.

A people that can spend hundreds of millions of dollars on a new fad in a single season, is not exactly on its way over the hill to the poor house. A country that once had many a citizen too poor to spend a quarter for the privilege of playing tiddy-winks for the rest of his life,
eventually reached a state of high prosperity.
A country whose millions can spend thirty-five cents apiece for a few minutes of peewee golf, could be able to reach a similar state without any "eventually" about it.—Minneapolis Journal.

In the Beginning at Oberlin.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Oberlin was set in motion as a co-educational institution and in that she was a pioneer. A most singular fact about the matter is that feature of its work was never discussed. It was adopted as a course of common sense.
Hence, in the course of the noted college students were never called upon to yield any of their rights, nor the women students to accept a prerogative that had not been theirs from the first.

One thing Oberlin tried out at first that has remained an experiment there as well as elsewhere ever since, is the support of the student in his education, as far as might be by the labor of his own hands. This is something quite different from earning by the student of his entire support, or making manual labor a part of his education.

There was one new position that Oberlin took at the setting out which caused some severe criticism to be made upon her and which resulted in some discussions among her own founders. That was the admission of young colored people to the institution as students.
Slavery and the color question were beginning to be widely and vigorously discussed. Oberlin decided to admit young men and women of color to all the advantages of its course and from that course it never swerved.

Typhoid Increase and Drought.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Last summer we went through an almost unprecedented period of hot weather and drought.
It extended over the entire country. At such a time there is a reduction in the water supply, and a curtailment of food stuffs. These evils are far-reaching when it comes to the health of the people.

According to a recent report from Surgeon
General Cummings, of the public health service, in Washington, typhoid fever was on the increase through the summer. During one week there were 920 reported cases as compared to 870 in the corresponding week of last year.

Every health expert urges extreme care that drinking water in rural sections, when it comes from sources the purity of which are in doubt,
should always be boiled.

Reduced water supplies, contamination from milk supplies, raw vegetables and many other factors are carriers of infection from the dread germ of typhoid. It is possible flies and mosquitoes may carry these germs to food and drink.

Typhoid carriers—that is, persons who had typhoid and who carry the germ in their bodies for years—are another source of infection. They are always a menace.

The symptoms of typhoid fever vary in different people. The period of incubation is from eight to fourteen days. As a rule the onset is gradual. First there may be headache, then abdominal pain, constipation, fever, chills, eruption on the abdomen, and many other symptoms.

One of the first precautions to be taken when typhoid fever is suspected is to put the patient to bed. Cases which otherwise might have been slight have proved extremely severe because this precaution was not observed.

After years of study, the medical profession
have found that medicine is not the most important thing in the treatment of a typhoid patient. Careful nursing, proper diet and the best of care will usually bring about complete recovery. As in the case of many diseases, vaccine treatment has been found successful in preventing typhoid fever.

The modern diet in the case of typhoid is contrasted strongly with that of only a few years ago. The starvation diet is a thing of the past. Milk, codded or soft-boiled, eggs, broths, jellies and other foods suggested by the doctor in charge are permissible.

There should be frequent baths and cool
sponges, and frequent cleansing of the mouth.
Great care must be taken to protect others in the home from infection. All excreta should be disinfected. The bedding and personal linen should be kept separate, disinfected and washed. With these precautions, further cases in a family need not be feared.—Copyright, 1930, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

F. F. V. Q.—I have had severe pains in the stomach and bowels and have recently learned that the pancreas is involved. Is there any cure and would an operation be beneficial?

A—Without making careful examination it would be impossible to advise you along these lines. The treatment depends upon the extent of the trouble and its nature. Your doctor will advise you. It is possible that proper diet will bring about general improvement.

J. A. T. Q.—In a normal condition, is it sufficient for the bowels to move but once a day?

A—Yes.
L. M. S. Q.—What tonic would you advise for a run-down system? Which cod liver oil is the best? When should it be taken for the best results?

A—The pure cod liver oil, taken after meals.

Future of the Dirigible.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The specific accomplishments of the Graf
Zeppelin and the R-100 during the past year promise to give great impetus to airship construction. It is a mighty achievement to make a non-stop flight of some 7,000 miles, at an average speed of some seventy miles an hour.
It is a memorable feat to circle the globe in twenty-one days of elapsed time, with only twelve days of actual flight. Japan and America are now within "three days' distance" of each other. In the near future, we may confidently expect London and Montreal to be within two days' distance of each other.

Leading authorities, such as Dr. Hugo Eckener and Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the bureau of aeronautics of the United States navy department, were pronounced in their view that the airship is destined to be the great long distance overwater carrier of the future. The great transoceanic air lines of the future will be provided along great stretches of shoreline, will be filled by airplane travel.

Questions of economy likewise will play an important part in a controlling role in the determination of the cheapest maximum cruising radius for airplanes, which will be the minimum for airships. Admiral Moffett feels inclined to set this figure at about 2,000 miles.

The best engineering authorities, it appears,
advise the building of dirigibles considerably larger than either the Graf Zeppelin or the R-100. No airship large enough for transoceanic commercial travel has yet been constructed.
Greater size means greater stability; and furthermore, by greatly increasing the accommodation space for passengers, will definitely place this new type of transcontinental and transoceanic air travel upon a sound commercial basis. In the not far distant future, commercial cost upon airships will be brought within the reach of at least the well-to-do, and will not be confined merely to the very rich.

Larger airships will bring greatly increased speed of travel. Distance is no longer the determining factor in air travel; it has been displaced by speed of locomotion. Separation between geographical points is estimated nowadays, not in terms of distance, but in terms of transport time. To paraphrase Einstein, time is eating up space. Within a few years, airship speeds will doubtless be increased at least fifty per cent.

The great hindrance to the development of airship travel and transport is the danger from fire, destruction by explosion. The public has a comprehensive dread of inflammable gases.
Hydrogen filled envelopes are a constant menace. This obstacle may be, and doubtless soon will be, removed, by the general use of non-inflammable helium. The United States is particularly fortunate in having enormous helium resources, which may readily be made available for commercial use.—Copyright, 1930, International Feature Service, Inc.

and monsignori were in the parade. "It is gratifying to see civil authorities cooperating in the welcome," said Archbishop Fumasoni-Biondi, the pope's representative. "The Catholic church has always taught that all civil as well as ecclesiastical power comes from God. America has been the land of opportunity for the church because of the guarantee of religious freedom."

Bishop Joseph W. Schrembs of Cleveland, national protector of the Eucharistic league, joined with the archbishop in responding to the welcoming address of Governor Arthur Weaver and Mayor Richard S. Metcalf.

Refers to Russia

In his address, Bishop Schrembs mentioned the struggle between the church and state in Soviet Russia.

"In view of our advancement under the constitution of the United States, there is no question how the people will choose between the Red, White and Blue, and the red flag of Bolshevism," he said.

Bishop Schrembs had an audience with the pope three weeks ago and delivered a message from the pontiff to the congress. He announced that hereafter the national congress will be held every five years. The last convocation was held in 1911, and was discontinued at that time because of the death of Bishop Maes of Covington, Ky., who was then protector.

CHAPTER 19
Money Talks
The weather had moderated and the sun was shining through the windows of her bedroom. Chase could stand it no longer, and, regardless of the nurse's remonstrances, he was being wheeled into the living first ascertained that Winslow had motored to the city and that Mr. Winslow was in his room.
"So this Miss Elsa," pronounced the nurse, "you can't see her, you are not well enough to see her with Mrs. Winslow."

shoulders. Elsa swung her chair to the right, and continued wheeling it along, careless of the route she took, her only desire to get away from her thoughts. She stopped almost as abruptly as she had started as the chair brought up against the gate leading from the foot path to the broad highway. Suddenly a voice almost in her ear caused her to start violently, and the color drained from her cheeks at sight of a blond woman in blue standing just inside the gate.
The newcomer watched her with a cynical smile.
"Well, here we are again!" the newcomer exclaimed. "And that nurse of yours said you were too ill to come out of doors."
Elsa summoned a strained smile; it was the best she could muster.
"It is nice of you to be so solicitous about my health," she said softly, "you, a total stranger."
The woman eyed her curiously, then from her bag took out a not overclean visiting card.
"Since you insist on formalities," the sneer was apparent, "Here you are. Can you reciprocate?"
Without answering, Elsa glanced at the card thrust almost under her nose—Mrs. Ben Lawrence, so ran the engraved script—but the card was withdrawn and replaced in the woman's hand bag before she could decipher the scrawled address in the left corner.
"I am sorry, Mrs. Lawrence," began Elsa, "but your name conveys nothing to me."
"Then why have you avoided meeting me?" broke in the other. "What are you afraid of, if you don't know me?" and her eyes bored into Elsa.
Elsa shrugged her shoulders. "You are pleased to be mysterious," she retorted. "I was never good at conundrums. Why not, raising clear eyes to the ones scowling down at her, speak in plain United States?"
Mrs. Lawrence indulged in a sneering "Ha!" Then with a leer: "Where's your visiting card, Miss Elsa Chase?"
"I have none with me," Elsa replied patiently. "If you have anything to say to me, please say it; it is growing colder and I cannot remain here much longer."
"And you don't want to invite me into the house," she said. "Well, suppose I make a date with Mr. Winslow; he, with peculiar emphasis, 'wants to see me.'"
"Well, pray see him and gratify his curiosity," retorted Elsa, losing all patience. "Frankly, Mrs. Lawrence, I am tired of innuendoes. You have uttered veiled threats on the two occasions I have seen you; now, what is it?"
"You want a showdown?" The woman's blue-green eyes gleamed oddly. She moved forward so that Elsa could look directly at her without having to turn her head and took off her felt hat; then, with a movement both swift and stealthy, she lifted her blond wig, disclosing her cropped gray locks and a hideous scar which crossed the top of her forehead where the hair would naturally have grown. Elsa shrank back against her pillows as a vision rose before her of a prone figure on a bed in a small white-washed room; a room spotlessly clean, yet with menacing bars in the one window; a face on the pillow swathed in bandages and the hideous scar a disfiguring blot in contrast to the white linen.
Mrs. Lawrence's voice in her ear sounded far off; only gradually did she sense what the woman was saying.
"Come across, sister," and Mrs. Lawrence stood looking down at Elsa, her felt hat and wig once more in place. "It's easier to pay the price than doin' a term in the pen," she muttered coarsely.
Elsa fumbled in the mesh bag which she had dropped in the inside pocket of her fur coat instead of returning it to its usual hiding-place, and drew out $50 in gold.
"You will have to be satisfied with that," she exclaimed, catching Mrs. Lawrence's moustachious glance.
"For now." The woman pocketed the money. "Shall I come out for more tomorrow?" suggestively, "or, perhaps, tonight, when the men-folks are home?"
From her bag, which hung conveniently on the arm of her chair, Elsa took a pad and the stub of a pencil.
"Your address?" she asked briefly, and the woman, glancing at her uneasily, saw that she had gone too far.
"What do you want it for?" suspicion overcoming her cupidity.
"So that I can communicate with you through others," swiftly, regaining her composure. "Stop," observing the protest trembling on Mrs. Lawrence's lips. "If you want money, it will have to be given to you in my way, or—well, you know the penalty for blackmail!"
The woman's color changed.
"I'm stopping at 1819 35th street," she volunteered, and would have added more but the gate behind them clicked as it swung back into place and Ferguson shambled up to them.
"Is this 'ere woman a-botherin' ye?" he questioned, touching his finger to his cap visor, and with an appraising glance at Mrs. Lawrence. "Mr. Winslow don't permit no trespassin', ma'am."
Elsa pressed the blunted stub of her pencil against the pad as she wrote down the figures in blind haste. Thank God Ferguson had come!
The effect of the gardeners' presence on Mrs. Lawrence was marked; instantly she was all civility.
"Just stopped for a 'friendly word,'" she announced glibly, "seeing this young lady through the garden gate, sitting here so lonely. Well, I must be off," and she waved her hand coquettishly at Elsa as she sidled through the gate which the scowling Ferguson held open for her.

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD MONTGOMERIE LEWIS
I DIDN'T know catfishes grew so big. I had thought about it a long time when me and Jubilee woke up this morning, and I didn't know till I got up and went down, after I had let Jubilee down, how my grandfather had got it home. I asked him whilst I was feeding my face and he said my hook was in one side of his mouth and his in the other, so he took hold of the two lines to steer it by and got straddle of it and swam it right up to town. He said two tug boats and a propeller followed him in and nobody ever did see such a big cat. "Big what?" said my big cat. "Big cat," said my grandfather. "Oh," said my grandfather, "I thought you said 'big lire'." Then my mother smiled at me and told me that a man with a truck brang my grandfather and hit cat home and that he wouldn't take any pay for it. Then the morning paper slammed up against the front door and my grandfather asked me to get it for him, and on the front page was a picture of him and the cat. We was all surprised.
My aunt said to him, "I suppose the one with the hat on is you." My grandfather sort of snorted, and told her it was a good guess. She said she could not have told by the grin because his grin and the catfish grin looked just alike. I had a catfish steak for breakfast. My mother said our yard was full of cats all night because of the parts of the catfish my grandfather threw away when he cleaned it. I didn't hear them. I found his head and pushed it back against the barn and nailed it there by the ears of the gills. It is certainly a big one. My grandfather and the cat home and that back and catch his mate, and I asked him how he knew it had one, and he said he knew it did.

HOMECOMING

Love's Reawakening

A Wife's Triumph Over Jealousy

BY ADRIAN GARRISON
Phil Veritzen, Interpreter Madge's Decision
"You don't mean to tell me you're all able to stand up?" Harry Underwood exclaimed in burlesque astonishment, as he came up to me after bringing in from his apartment the masculine guests to a party. "From what the Dicky-bird has been persistently chattering, I expected to see all you girls laid out in swoons from starvation all over the furniture."
His tones were loud enough to be heard by everyone in the room, and, as always, the effect of his nonsense was an instant loosening of the natural stiffness which pervades a festive gathering of people, the most of whom were strangers to each other. The older people smiled, the younger ones laughed outright, and listened impatiently for my response. In the patent hope that it would call forth another of the big man's infinitely drawn-out speeches.
"You ought to know Dicky's little ways by this time," I told him. "He's simply hungry, as usual. But—"
"But," Mr. Underwood echoed, "I suppose that means 'to are we all,' or words to that effect. Well, when the Dicky-bird gets these little friends of mine properly introduced we can grab off the food."
He lowered his voice to a murmur from the side of his mouth which only I could hear.
"Tipe the casualties!" he said.
Feminine Hearts
I choked back a giggle, but I need not have feared it would be heard. No one of the schoolgirls to whom Dicky was introducing the cadets whom Harry had invited as "extra men" for the party had eyes or ears for anyone save the youth in uniform who were "bowling from the waist" with the easy assurance that the West Point regime gives to every cadet, no matter how unlikely a cub he may have been as a plebe. And these lads were second year men and the sons of army officers. Harry had told us. Social experience had been theirs from their cradles.
They would have been attractive youths in civilian clothing, for they possessed faces which most women would dub "handsome" and they were well set up into. But their uniforms added the touch of glamour which kept every girl's eyes turned in their direction when Dicky had left the cadets with them.
Veritzen Assumes
Four other pairs of eyes were also fixed on the cadets, but not with any appreciation of their glamour. Round and his three friends were too well-bred and too proud to show any dislike for the newcomers, indeed, their greeting of them was extra cordial. But the glances they shot in the direction of the cadets when they thought they were unobserved gave all the effect of clenched fists and muttered threats.
There was another pair of tense, masculine eyes in the room, but not on account of the cadets. Colin Cameron, the young talker star, had not troubled even to speak to me, his hostess, when he entered the room with Philip Veritzen. He had stood a second just inside the door, his eyes searching the room, and when he saw May he went straight to her, knowing that he was talking to her, as if he did not exist. It was a striking exhibition of bad breeding, but I was not surprised, for young Mr. Cameron struck me as having only a veneer of good manners, which peeled off whenever his "spotted boy" wishes asserted themselves, revealing the commonness of the wood beneath.

But if Noel's eyes were resentful, their expression was the only indication of his feeling which Mary's fiancé betrayed. Evidently mindful of his promise to me, he kept himself under iron control, and when Mary, confused and flushing, introduced him to young Cameron his smile was as cordial, his handclasp as hearty as though there was no well of jealousy in his heart. He knew, poor Noel, that this was the man whom his father had selected, as we all believed, to avenge Mary's allegiance from himself, but he gave no indication of that knowledge in his demeanor.
I had the opportunity to observe all this because Mr. Veritzen who had come directly to me as soon

Sports Editor, The Star

To gallop over Gallon in a very convincing manner seemed to be the principal idea revolving in the craniums of the Harding High school football squad yesterday afternoon as it intermittently battered and bruised a tackling dummy and then blocked and banged fellow henchmen around in an effort to improve these two departments of play over that of last Saturday when Toledo Central rode roughshod over the Presidents in the opening set of the 1930 grid grind. Coaches Bohyer, Williams and Huffman sent the lincies through one of the toughest practice sessions of the season in an attempt to instill into the team a knowledge of tackling and blocking that would not allow itself to be displaced by the efforts of the Gallon gangsters.

All those individuals who wish to attend the annual presentation banquet of the city baseball commission, Monday night in the Y. M. C. A. dining room should send in their reservations to Elmer Shaw at the Y. before Saturday of this week. Any person in the city is eligible to attend the dinner. The winners of the city baseball league will be given pennants at the dinner and the city championship trophy. Twelve members of the champs will be given individual medals for their accomplishment. The four winning teams will be admitted as guests of the commission while others will be asked to pay for their dinner. Send your reservations to Elmer Shaw at the Y.

Each organization in Marion that supported a recreational baseball league in any of the four classes during the last summer is asked to have either its captain or manager or both at the commission banquet next Monday. The commission will have some matters of extreme importance to all managers concerning the keeping of the four city parks in playing condition next season.

The price of the banquet had not been determined when this was written but it is probable that Elmer Shaw at the Y. may be able to give anyone desiring to attend the necessary information. Here is a chance to conclude the greatest city baseball season of Marion in a big way. Let's not chalk up an error on the final play.

With the brilliant record compiled by the club last season still fresh in the minds of the members of the organization the basketball squad of the Y-Indus club expects to start light training soon in preparation for a tough schedule this year. The Y-Indus team has already booked some of the strongest amateur teams in the state and also several outstanding college quintets. The club is expecting to flash through this year in even greater heights than last when it won both the Ohio state Y title and the Y conference title for the state. Bud Cram is expected to again captain and manage the outfit this season.

JONES PACES FIELD IN AMATEUR

ATLANTA BARRISTER AHEAD ONE STROKE

Bobby Expected to Further Increase Lead in Today's Matches.

BY DAVID J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Writer
SOUTH ARDMORE, Penn., Sept. 23.—If Robert Tyre Jones, the gifted barrister of old Atlanta, doesn't make Lloyd's of London worry for their audacious 20 to 1 odds against his quadrilateral golf triumph, it won't be because he hasn't got the jump on one of the most indifferent fields that has competed for a national amateur championship.

The great Atlantan went into the second day of the qualifying business here today with a one stroke lead on all other prospective medalists and of the pair who were a stroke behind him, only one, Dr. O. F. Willing, the gloomy dentist of Portland, had the remotest chance of remaining even with him throughout today's 18 holes.

Now it is generally admitted that

INJURIES DEplete RANKS OF COLLEGE GRID TEAMS IN OHIO

Quarterbacks Feel Brunt of Week's Damages; Wesleyan Exception.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23.—There has been an injury scourge on quarterbacks of Ohio college football teams during the past week, and coaches would prefer that it strike any other position on the team.

Ten days of scrimmages is taking toll of all squads but coaches as a rule like to know which athletes are brittle before they begin to depend too much on them. Only the star quarterbacks can hope to play through a hard season but in several cases bad luck has been the foremost factor.

Ashland college lost fullback McCuen, its leading scoring threat, when he tripped over a teammate and broke two bones in his lower leg a week ago. Yesterday Charles Zanner, a sophomore back at Otterbein college, broke his right leg.

Student Prince Hurt

Henry Scaife, Heidelberg's veteran quarterback of 1928 and 1929, was kept out of practice at Tiffin on Saturday's hard scrimmaging. Bob Benham, 175-pound sophomore quarterback at University of Cincinnati, followed the team's signal drills with one arm in a sling because of a bruised shoulder and he may be out of the Cedarville game Saturday night.

Akron U. Hit
Coach Red Blair of Akron University had to revise his entire backfield because of an injury to Harold Frye, his star quarterback. Red Cochrane, all-Ohio conference halfback of 1929, has been shifted to quarterback and "Red" Frye, Harold's brother, is being used at halfback. Red Wilson, substitute quarterback, is still suffering from a charity horse received while playing baseball last summer, so he is not of much use as a replacement.

Jimmy Brinley, a veteran tackle at Toledo University, broke a collar bone in scrimmage yesterday and is out of it for a month, as is Frye.

Many Ohio colleges cannot afford to gamble with their manpower and some of them have barely enough material for two scrimmaging teams. On Wesleyan, on the other hand, relieved today at the return of Wilmer Dickinson, of Adena, a sophomore fullback who had been on the injured list, thereby relieving a "shortage of fullbacks." Three-fourths of Ohio coaches would like to have George Gauthier's cast-off fullbacks.

CUB OWNER AFFIRMS REPORT M'CARTHY TO BE REPLACED IN '31

Hornsby To Take Over Managerial Duties of Bruins Club Next Year.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—The Tribune, in a copyrighted story said today that William Wrigley, Jr., club owner, had announced that Rogers Hornsby would be appointed to manage the Chicago Cubs, National league champions, for the season of 1931 and possibly longer.

"There has been no misunderstanding with Joe McCarthy, the present manager," Wrigley was quoted as saying. "We simply decided to make a change, and as proof of my friendship and respect for Joe I will do all I can to assist him in getting another major league position."

May Not Work

"It may be true that we will be worse off if the change is made. The move may not be popular with the fans," McCarthy was given free rein in the buying of players, and I believe we have a great team. McCarthy has had five years to prove this, so I don't think there is anything unusual about not engaging him after a stretch such as that."

"We planned," he added, "to offer Hornsby a contract a few days after the season closes. We didn't want to embarrass McCarthy. Now that all sorts of rumors are flying around the matter probably will be taken up immediately."

Hornsby regarded as one of the greatest leaders ever developed, has been out of the game most of this year with injuries. His play last season was held by many to have been a vital factor in the winning of the league championship.

1929 Failure Cause

The decision to make a change in managers, the Tribune quoted Wrigley as saying, was reached when the Cubs failed last year to win the world series from the Philadelphia Athletics.

"Since the day I entered baseball as an owner," he said to the Tribune, "I have had my heart set on winning a world series."

Wrigley intimated that some other things had occurred to convince him a change was justified, the Tribune reporter said, but he refused to elaborate on them.

He declared he always has been a great admirer of Hornsby as a player and that he had been impressed by Hornsby's management of the St. Louis Cardinals and of the Giants during the short term he acted in John McGraw's place.

LACK OF PITCHERS MAY HURT MACKS

Connie Worried About Form of Earnshaw; Fears Cardinals.

By The Associated Press
PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—Connie Mack is a bit worried about the Philadelphia Athletics' chances in the world series against about his pitching and he said he was particularly worried about George Earnshaw.

"If I had one more pitcher, I mean one more dependable pitcher," Mack said today. "I think I'd be all right. I'm particularly worried about Earnshaw. George hasn't looked like himself in the last few starts, and in addition he hasn't recovered from being struck on the knee with a batted ball."

"This series is going to be a mighty tough one for us to win. St. Louis must have a great ball club. They were 12 games behind on August 9—that shows how good they are. The Cardinals have a lot of pitchers and plenty of good batters. Another thing, the gait they've been traveling will send them into the series at the very peak of their form."

1930 Grid Rule Explanations

1. A player may not intentionally ground a forward pass. The penalty for such offense is 15 yards and the play counts a down.

2. A player who has left the game during one half may not enter the game again during the same half. If having left the game during the opening half he may enter the game again during the second half.

3. One player of an offensive team may be in motion when ball is snapped if directly or clearly in oblique direction from own end of the line of scrimmage.

4. A defensive player may not come into personal contact with an eligible receiver of a forward pass in an effort to prevent same eligible receiver from catching pass.

5. The two players on the end of the line of scrimmage and any backs who are five yards behind the line of scrimmage when ball is snapped are eligible to receive a forward pass.

QUESTIONS

1. How many times out are allowed a team during each half of the game?

2. What is the penalty for illegal delay of the game by either team?

3. Who must an incoming substitute player report to before starting to play?

4. When is a substitution considered complete?

5. How may an incoming substitute change the position of players already on the field before play begins after his substitution?

Who cares what are the words they sing in grand opera? It is the music that tells the story.

JONES TEES OFF

Before a large crowd of admirers Bobby Jones is shown teeing off for the start of the first 18 holes of the 36 hole qualifying round of the national amateur golf championship tournament. Jones shot a brilliant 69 in this round to lead the field by a single stroke. He will play the second 18 qualifying holes today.

Ohio State Picked To Be Dark Horse of Big Ten

By International News Service
COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23.—In the shadow of the huge Ohio State memorial stadium, there is a football machine being welded together that is likely to be the surprise of the 1930 Big Ten campaign.

It is a team of mystery, composed mainly of sophomores, who have yet to be tried out in conference competition. Nevertheless, the basis of a great gridiron team is there, and given an even break in luck, it would not surprise us to see Coach Sam Willaman's aggregation cut a wide swath in this year's title race.

Ordinarily a coach would be somewhat disheartened by the loss of practically his entire first string lineup through graduation and ineligibility. Not Willaman, however. One might even say he feels relieved to know what he no longer has to worry about the "prima donnas" and "fraternally squabblers" who have ruined the morale of the squad for at least three years past.

One of the most startling experiments attempted by the coach is the shifting of Wesley Fesler, two-time all-American end, to full back. The chances are that he will stay there, too, for in scrimmages he has shown a speed and shiftness that may earn him all-star recognition in still another capacity.

Stuart Holcomb, at fullback, will probably be the only one of last year's backfield performers to play back of the line with Fesler. The other positions on the first team apparently will go to sophomores. The most likely backfield reserves will also be sophomores.

Chief among them are Jack Greenberg, Paul Hodnick, Russell

CARDS MOVE NEARER TO LEAGUE FLAG AS PHILLIES FALL, 15-7

Cubs Also Win, but Fail To Gain on St. Louis Contenders.

By ORLO ROBERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer.

PLAYING baseball at an $90 clip is championship ball in anybody's league but that is what the St. Louis Cardinals have been doing since Aug. 17, to all but clinch the National league pennant.

The Cardinals moved a little nearer the clinching of the pennant yesterday with a 15 to 7 triumph over the Phillies, while the Chicago Cubs were downing the Boston Braves, 6-2, in the only games played in the major leagues. The victories of the league leader and the runner-up still left the Cubs trailing by two and one-half games but made their task of winning even more difficult. The Cardinals have five more games on their schedule and need to win only three of them even if the Cubs sweep their final four-game series with the Cincinnati Reds.

The Robins, which were idle yesterday, are four games back of the Cards, and must win all of their remaining five games if the Cardinals lost all of their games. In defeating the Phillies, the Cardinals hammered a trio of pitchers over the ball park in the early innings and then to victory behind the steady tramping of Sylvester Johnson and man Bell, who was on the mound in the last inning.

Guy Bush pitched the Cubs' victory over the Braves, ing the losers to six hits while mates were pounding Seibold, ningham and Brandt for 12 blows. Included in the Cubs' collection of hits was Hack W. lity-third home run of the ssn. Wilson also contributed of the fielding features, making a sensational running catch Richbourg's liner.

Chung Hoon, a 160-pound waller, is a candidate for qu back on the Navy Academy team.

Indiana Coach Sends Son to M Who Made Him Famous.
By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—Harlan ville Page, Jr., son of H. O. Page, Indiana university football coach, will learn his football A. A. Stagg at the University Chicago, instead of playing fo dad at Indiana.

Page, Sr., one of Chicago's greatest stars, sent his son to man who taught him his football. Page had entered the room freshman class this week. O. Jr., is a candidate for the man team, but has been out with the varsity.
